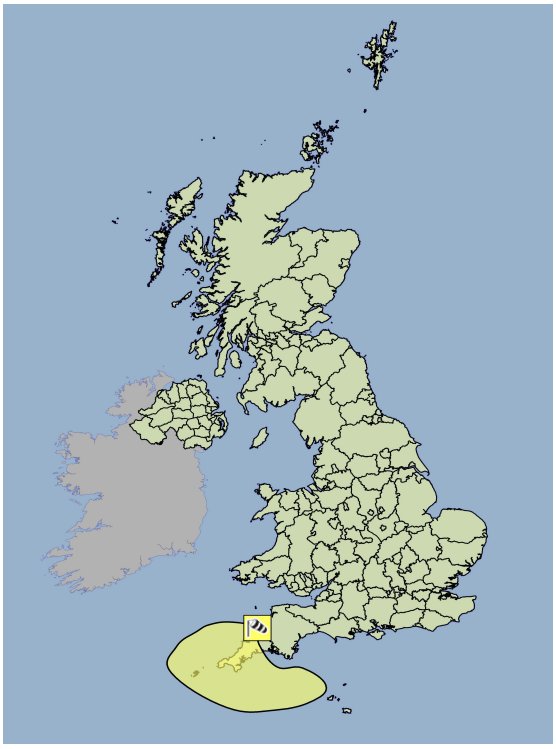
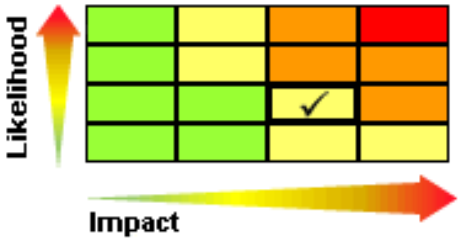
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A vigorous low pressure system is likely to develop a core of stronger winds which cuts across the far southwest of England during the second part of Tuesday. Heavy rain and spray will exacerbate conditions for travellers.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Wind

Valid from 14:00 on Tue, 14th May 2013 until 22:00 on Tue, 14th May 2013

In addition to the heavy rainfall, covered by the separate warning, indications are that a swathe of very strong winds is likely to skirt parts of Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly during Tuesday afternoon and evening. Gusts of wind may exceed 60 mph in a number of locations, with a risk of gusts of around 70 mph in the more exposed localities. The public should be aware that there may be localised disruption to travel and damage to trees.
